SUMMARY

Hexagon has provided expert experience, knowledge, and relevant past performance to the US Army Records Management and Declassification Agency (RMDA). Our experience includes record handling and accountability, records review for declassification, quality assurance, providing reports to RMDA management, and transport of classified records. Our analysts are thoroughly experienced with equity identification and classification determinations. Hexagon's experience, knowledge and consistent, repeatable approach is another significant strength of our service offering. Throughout the process of interpreting classified material, Hexagon identifies the metadata tags necessary to insert into human-readable fields that describe the different classified materials, which encompass the variety of media types. This metadata information is integrated into Army Declassification Activity Management System (ADAMS). ADAMS provides a workflow process for reviewing and tracking records, provides disposition of records, and is scalable.
